New American Pathways is excited to announce the launch of Civic Pathways, an 8-month leadership development program created in partnership with the University of Georgia's J.W. Fanning Institute of Leadership. We are currently seeking applicants to join the first cohort of new American leaders who, beginning in May, will participate in a series of monthly workshops, discussions, projects, and other activities designed to strengthen their skills as civic leaders in their local communities.

This Program is an Ideal Fit for New Americans Who:

- Have a desire to help serve their communities and have some experience serving as a leader in the past (in the community, at work, etc.)
- Have an interest in civic engagement work (voter engagement, advocacy, community organizing) and want to learn more about how to navigate channels of state and local government, along with other forms of civic participation
- Aspire to grow in their involvement in public service and are interested in developing their skills as civic leaders
- Enjoy collaborating and connecting with others and are looking for opportunities to network with other community leaders, along with professionals leading in government, the business community and the nonprofit sector.

Steps for Interested Applicants:

- Learn more about the Civic Pathways Leadership Development program by registering for our optional orientation sessions for prospective applicants. Interested candidates will have the opportunity to learn more about program goals, curriculum, schedule, while also providing a space to ask questions. This orientation will be held via Zoom on Monday, March 15th from 6:00-6:30pm. Join on Zoom here.
- Complete program application by 11:59pm on Sunday, March 28th. The application form can be found here.
- Expect to hear from New American Pathways regarding the status of your admission to the program by Thursday, April 1st. Selected candidates invited to advance to the next round will receive instructions for scheduling a 15-20-minute phone interview at a time of their choice between Friday, April 2nd and Thursday, April 8th.
- Applicants will receive notification of admission by Friday April 8th with 12 members selected to participate.
